Torekko announces its rebirth and the opening of three branches

Torekko announces its return to the scene with the opening of three branches, a new team, new offices, the opening of company licenses, and a new graphic identity.

PARIS, October 11th, 2022 — Torekko STUDIOS announced today its return to the scene with the opening of three branches, a new team, new offices, the opening of company licenses, and a new graphic identity.

After raising $2 million from its community in November 2021, Torekko's studios have been working on the release of its metaverse, in close collaboration with Japanese animation studios.

To prepare for the upcoming release of its latest partnerships, upcoming collections of NFTs, and upcoming service offerings, Torekko is opening three branches:

- Torekko PROD oversees developing the graphic and artistic part of the licenses.
- Torekko PLAY is the video game design studio, which has been producing The Infinite Fortress for months.
- Torekko PAD is Torekko's launchpad, designed to launch projects we believe in, our licenses, and the projects we produce with our partners.

Victor KELLER, Co-Founder and CEO Europe-Americas said: “But above all, a major point of change will mark a turning point in Torekko's activity: we are opening our licenses to companies! We have been preparing for this for months and are already looking forward to announcing our next partnerships.”
